

I will Never Dare...

On this Christmas Day
There is so much love flying in the air...
There are so many words that I would like to say,
To fill your heart with peace, to take your pain away.

And some magical way to bring the stars into your eyes,
And to light up the candles everywhere...
Unwrap your childish smile, and run my fingers through your hair,
To steal a kiss under the mistletoe, and hug you like a teddy bear.

There are so many things that I would like to do
To change your day from grayish blue to a golden sunshine ray,
So you can find the happiness you always dreamed and prayed...

There are so many gentle thoughts I nurtured and I saved
For this Christmas Eve to keep you warm today and every day,
But I will never dare to share ...

I am afraid to lose your light that shines on me,
To lose your silver glare...

There are so many dreams I wrapped so nicely,
And placed them under my Christmas tree, to give away
To the people I love and care,
And especially to you.

But I never did and I will never dare
To give that special gift to you ...

I moved back to my lonely shell because I'm scared
To burn the wooden bridge we share,
Because I couldn't bear another aftershock or put my pride away
To tell you how much I love and care...
This time, I let Destiny to do the math and tell
If we are meant to be, and why we are resisting The Magnetism and Gravity,
And let Fate to analyze and test the Chemistry
We share...
