

Kamikaze

Like a fireball from Heaven something fell into the sea,
Calm waters were disturbed in their daily playful spree.

It happened to be
That the stars in the sky were playing Kamikaze...
The impact was hot and heavy,
The penetration was so deep into the sacred sea
That the rising heat engulfed my face
With the blushing veil of sunset, and
The blood started boiling in my heart at a thousand degrees.
The flames were rising above the surface
And the water couldn't extinguish the passion of Burning Kamikaze.

The wildest roar of forbidden ecstasy
Broke free from the depths of my chained fantasy, Reached to the heart of the Crab Nebula, and
When the star pierced the veil of innocence,
The scream of the whale from the awakened sea
Speared the screen of night's harmony...

Sudden electric current ran through me
And crossed between the shores of my sacred sea:
Hidden deep in the soul, it rippled through my body
And
Left all swimming creatures in the madness of the sea:
Shivering from sensation, gone haywire, gone crazy...
